Hi there, I live on McGrath road in Rosedale and I see on the corner of Yale and McGrath road there is a rezoning proposal to make the old picking shop into a cannabis dispensary. This is absolutely ridiculous! Rosedale traditional school is just down the road in one direction. There is also a house with little children about 2 houses down attached to the flower shop. And there are parks in the other direction. Not to mention it's right at the end of a neighborhood with a lot kids around. There is Rosedale grocery right across the street where a lot of children walk to, to get their candy and treats. They don't need to be walking by the kinds of people that hang out at places like this! This is the absolute last thing Rosedale needs. I've spoken with others in the neighborhood and they are as outraged as I am. Chilliwack has plenty of other places to buy this garbage. People shouldn't be forced to move because the city wants to make drugs more accessible to children. This is a disgrace.
